FLYNN ISN'T GOING TO SQUEAL

BEFORE ONE GRAND JURY AS TWO OTHERS GO ON RECORD.

One Says There Is a Crime Wave, the Other Says There Isn't-Rosalsky Votes Ves Retiring Deputy Has No Scandal to Expose in the Police Department.

The three officials whose doings and savings have been of most interest perhaps in the "crime wave" investigation contributed nothing yesterday in the way of opinions of each other or as to how well or how badly the city is policed. To all such questions the District Attorney replied only with a wag of the head from west to east. Second Deputy Commissioner Flynn said gravely that there was nothing to say. Mayor Gaynor was equally silent.

But the Grand Juries were unusually busy. The Crime Wave jury had before it Deputy Commissioner Flynn and Commissioner Cropsey. It adjourned until its foreman is ready to go ahead. The two April Grand Juries charged by Judge Rosalsky took a notion to comment on police matters. One of them reported that the police are inefficient and the town at the mercy of roughs. The other held that the charges against the police are inefficient and the town that the charges against the police are inefficient and the fown that the charges against the police are found to the commissioner from the ranks, a man who knows his business, who has the confidence of his men and who will make every effort to suppress crime.

Judge Rosalsky said that a copy of the presentment would be sent to Mayor Gaynor, and advised the Grand Jury before he discharged them that a committee should be appointed to see the interest of the Northern Bank's familiar with all of the Northern's dealings with the Carnegie Trust Company.

Building on August 24, the said that Hyde had forced him to loan money to the Carnegie Trust Company.

Joseph G. Robin and Henry J. Gold-smith, his lawyer, knew that Joseph Herman of House, Grossman & Vorhaus, had information which would be of value to the District Attorney. They had a talk with Herman, as the result of which a silk merchant who was a director of the Northern Bank and a member of the bank's familiar with all of the Northern Bank's familiar with all of the Northern's dealings with the Carnegie Trust Company.

that the mercy of roughs. The other held that the charges against the police are unfounded and that sober, respectable people don't get held up.

Judge Rosalsky agreed with the former opinion. He knew from experience that the police are efficient or capably governed. He was a friend of Mayor Gaynor's, but he believed that the Mayor given to making statements which he regretted in cooler moments. The Judge made it perfectly plain, though, that the police is tuation ought to be worked out and settled now. He didn't think any good was to be had by endeavors to conceal or color the truth.

Outside of the business of the investigating bodies the attitude of Commissioner. Flynn interested people more

Given to making statements which he police were in their superiors when they are treated as the examination until the caller was able to recall what took place at the meeting of the executive committee in Robin's talk before the executive committee. He made a long affidavit.

He was called by phone, he said, on August 24, 1910, and asked to attend a meeting of the executive committee at least half decently. I have reason to being treated with that dience they have reason to being treated with that they have reason to expect.

Outside of the business of the investigating bodies the attitude of Commissioner. Flynn interested people more missioner Flynn interested people more than anything else. Was he so incensed that he wouldn't take the Commissioner ship if the Mayor fired Cropsey? What was the real reason for his resignation? On these points Mr. Flynn maintained characteristic silence. He regretted that he had spoken freely the day before. Nobody could obtain from him any sort of explanation as to why he couldn't remain longer in the Police Department and preserve his self-respect.

His friends insisted that he was getting out because the grafters had more influence than he. Mr. Flynn didn't want to talk, they said, because he isn't the sort or man who cares to make anything resembling a "holler." He was getting out and that was the end of it. They pointed out, though, that Flynn's commission to raid the gamblers came from Mayor Gaynor himself. They wondered if any significance was to be attached to the raiding of the Hesper Club.

As to the Police Commissionership it was doubted that Flynn would take it under any circumstances. Flynn, they said, had had enough. He thought when he went into the department that he was to have a free hand: that his experience gained as a secret service man would be utilized to free the city of crooks and along special and important criminal lines. Instead he found himself hampered and chained. But nobody is going to get At Direct Election of Senators, the Recall, Flynn to talk about the Mayor or to attack individuals in the Police Department, his friends asserted.

Yesterday afternoon he was before the Grand Jury for three-quarters of an hour The jurors were keen on several points. Who were the crooks in the Police De partment? Who was selling him out? Wouldn't he clear up all these scandalous matters? The Commissioner gravely

It has been demonstrated already that many of the station house records don't agree with the entries of Police Headquarters. The Grand Jury wants to know how common the practice of suppressing reports

Two witnesses who made an impression on the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon were Coroner's Physician Weston and George Le Brun, a clerk in the Coroner's Their books showed that there were almost twice as many murders committed in 1910 as in 1909. In 1908 there were 74 homicides. In 1903 there were 108. In 1910 there were 183. And in 1910 there were only 42 arrests.

It was rather a surprise when the two April Grand Juries reported on the crime situation. The afternoon Grand Jury reported first. It made this presentment to Justice Rosalsky:

We deem it to be our duty as a Grand Jury to inform you:

The amount of money involved in the claim I make for the Washington Savings Bank as against the Fidelity Development Company, and which I have inisted on the Superintendent of Banks pressing for colletion, is not $27,000, as has been erroneously reported, but about $200,000. I learned recently that regardless of this the Superintendent of Banks has allowed a scheme to be put through under which a large part of the Pidelity Company's real estate has been transferred to a new corporation under the thin guise of "financing." The scheme was plausible, but to one who understands all the conditions it is too thin!
